Crime Prevention

Students are back in school. With the morning hustle and bustle, do you know the answer to important questions that the police would ask if your child didn't return home from school or activities as expected, and you called the police to help locate them?

Here are some initial questions:

- Approximately how tall are they & how much do they weigh?
- What clothing were they wearing the last time you saw them?
- Do you have a recent photo?
- Do they have a cell phone? What is the phone number?
- What are their friends' names, addresses, & parents names, phone numbers?
- Is there a place they like to 'hang out'?
- Do they use any social media platforms? If so, which ones? And what is their name on the platforms?

Planning ahead is the best way to prevent a stressful situation. Does your family have a daily routine? Some examples would be:

- "Call or message me after school to let me know you got home".
- "Call or message me if you plan to go anywhere other than home after school".
- "Stay at basketball until I pick you up. You are not to leave with anyone else".
- "If I don't pick you up by 6 PM, drive home with our neighbour. She is a trusted adult, and we have told her this plan".
- "If you are ever needed anything when mom & dad aren't around, who is a grown up that could help you?"

Road safety in rural Nova Scotia sometimes means ensuring the roadway is clear of objects that could cause a hazard to motorists. In October, Guysborough County District RCMP were called to assist with horses on the road. This is not something our officers learn about at depot anymore, but they were happy to assist where they could, to keep drivers and the animals safe.
